A sequel to Godzilla: King of the Monsters and Kong: Skull Island, this is the fourth film in Legendary Monster Verses. The film is also the 36th film in the Godzilla franchise, the 12th film in the King Kong franchise, and the fourth Godzilla film to be produced entirely by a Hollywood studio. [a] The film stars Alexander Skarsgård, Millie Bobby Brown, Rebecca Hall, Brian Tyree Henry, Shun Oguri, Eiza González, Jessica Henwick, Julian Dennison, Kyle Chandler and Demián Bichir. The project was announced in October 2015 when Legendary announced plans for a shared theatrical universe between Godzilla and King Kong. The film's writers' room was assembled in March 2017 and Wingard was named director in May 2017. Principal photography began in November 2018 in Hawaii, Australia and Hong Kong and wrapped up in April 2019. After being delayed from a November 2020 release date due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Godzilla vs. Kong is scheduled to be released simultaneously on 21 May 2021 in theaters and stream for a month on HBO Max. Premise at a time when monsters are running Earth, humanity's struggle for its future sets Godzilla and Kong on a collision course that will see the two most powerful forces of nature colliding on the planet in a spectacular battle for the ages. As Monarch begins a dangerous mission in uncharted terrain and unearths clues to the Titans' origins, a human conspiracy threatens to wipe away the creatures, both good and bad, from the face of the Earth forever.— Legendary and Warner Bros.[4] Cast Alexander Skarsgård: A geologist working closely with Kong. Skarsgård described his character as a reluctant hero who is not an alpha, bad ass and is thrown into this very dangerous situation and is certainly not equipped for it. [5] [6] Millie Bobby Brown as Madison Russell:Mark and Emma's daughter. As Godzilla and Kong battle, Madison goes on a trip to decide which one she'll end up with. [8] Rebecca Hall:Hall has her participation overwhelmingly described because the film was her first project. Was, pregnancy, but found the experience exciting. [9] Brian Tyree Henry Shun Oguri Eiza González:González described her role as a very smart woman behind a company. She also described the film as slightly comical. [10] Jessica Henwick Julian Dennison Kyle Chandler as Dr. Mark Russell: Madison's father and an expert anthropolooidologist. Demián Bichir in addition, Zhang Ziyi reprises her role of Godzilla: King of the Monsters, with Van Marten cast as her assistant. Lance Reddick was cast in an undisclosed role. Production Credits[4] Adam Wingard – director Kenji Okuhira – executive producer Yoshimitsu Banno – executive producer (posthumously) Jon Jashni – executive producer Thomas Tull – executive producer Jay Ashenfelter – co-producer Jen Conroy – co-producer Tamara Kent – co-producer Owen Patterson – production designer Tom Hammock – production designer Ann Foley – costume designer John DJ DesJardin – visual effects supervisor Development In September 2015, Legendary moved Kong: Skull Island from Universal to Warner Bros., which sparked media speculation that Godzilla and King Kong would appear together in a film. [11] In October 2015, Legendary confirmed that they would unite Godzilla and King Kong in Godzilla vs. Kong, targeted at the time for a May 29, 2020 release. Legendary plans to create a shared theater franchise centered around Monarch that brings Up Godzilla and Legendary King Kong into an ecosystem of other giant super-species, both classic and new. [13] Producer Alex Garcia confirmed that the film will not be a remake of King Kong against Godzilla, stating that the idea is not to make that movie again. In May 2017, Adam Wingard was named director of Godzilla vs. Kong. [15] In July 2017, Wingard talked about the outline created by the writers' room, stating: We go into great detail by all the characters, the bows they have, how they relate to each other, and most importantly how they relate to the samples, and how the samples relate to or reflect with them. He also said that he and his team were going to knock by knocking on the outline, stating, So once again, it's a discussion, and about feeling out how to make it as strong as possible, so that when Terry [Rossio] goes to write the script, he has a definite breakdown of what to include. [16] In August 2017, Wingard spoke about his approach for the monsters, saying: I really want you to take those characters seriously. I want you to be emotionally invested, not just in the human characters, but actually in the monsters. It's a massive monster noise movie. There are a lot of monsters crazy on each other, but at the end of the day I want there to be an emotional ride there. I want you to be emotionally invested in them. I think that's what's going to make it really cool. [17] Wingard expressed for the film to have a surea winner, stating: I want there to be a winner. The original movie was a lot of fun, but you you a little disappointed that the movie doesn't take a definitive stance. People are now still debating what won in that original movie, you know. So, I want people to walk away from this film feeling like, Okay, there's a winner. [18] Wingard also confirmed that the film will come in with Godzilla: King of the Monsters, set in modern times and feature a more rugged, a little more elderly Kong. [19] Writing in March 2017, Legendary assembles a writers' room to develop the story for Godzilla vs. Kong, with Terry Rossio (who co-wrote an early unproduced script for TriStar's Godzilla)[20] leading a team consisting of Patrick McKay, J. D. Payne, Lindsey Beer, Cat Vasko, T. S. Nowlin, Jack Paglen, and J. Michael Straczynski. [21] With his experience with the writers' room, Rossio said, Godzilla vs. Kong was my first experience managing a writer's room, and it was fantastic. It was an explosion reading samples, meeting different writers, and crafting a story in a group setting. It felt similar to animation, where the film happens on the walls, and the end result is better than any one person could achieve on their own. [22] Michael Dougherty and Zach Shields, the director and co-authors of Godzilla: King of the Monsters, rewrote to ensure certain themes of king of the Monsters were transferred and that some characters were properly developed. [23] Dougherty revealed how he wrote for the title characters, and how the film would address their various interactions with their people. For Kong, Dougherty said the film will feature those very unique, and even warm, binding moments between Kong and man, as they've been a staple of the character since the 1933 film. For Godzilla, his connection to man would be more implicated, as his softer side is rarely shown. [24] Eric Pearson and Max Borenstein received a screenplay by credit, while Rossio, Dougherty and Shields received a Story by Credit. [25] Preproduction In June 2017, it was announced that Ziyi Zhang had joined Legendary Monster Verses, with an allegedly pivotal role in both Godzilla: King of the Monsters and Godzilla vs. Kong. In June 2018, Julian Dennison was cast with Van Marten, while Millie Bobby Brown and Kyle Chandler would reprise their roles of Godzilla: King of the Monsters. [27] Legendary also sent an offer to Frances McDormand for a role. In July 2018, it was revealed that Danaï Gurira was in early talks to join the film. In October 2018, Brian Tyree Henry,[30] Demián Bichir,[31] Alexander Skarsgård,[32] Eiza González,[33] and Rebecca Hall were added to the cast. In November 2018, Jessica Henwick,[35] Shun Oguri,[36] and Lance Reddick, were cast with Oguri making his Hollywood debut. [37] Filming principal photography began in Hawaii and Australia on 12 November 2018 and is expected to 2019 under the working title Apex ends. [38] Production was initially slated to begin on 1 October 2018. [39] For the Hawaii shooting, the crew filmed filming the USS Missouri, at Manoa Falls, and in Downtown Honolulu. The crew established a camp in the Kalanianaʻole Highway, which was closed until November 21. Local teams and extras were used for the film. [40] In January 2019, filming resumed in Gold Coast, Queensland at Village Roadshow Studios for an additional 26 weeks. [41] Filming locations in Australia included Miami State High School and parts of Brisbane such as the Newstead suburb, the Chinatown Mall in Fortitude Valley and the Wickham Terrace Car Park. In April 2019, Wingard confirmed via Instagram that filming was wrapped up in Australia. That same month, Wingard revealed Hong Kong as one of the final shooting spots and that main photography was wrapped up. [44] Music In June 2020, Tom Holkenborg was announced as the film's composer. [45] Wingard met with Holkenborg in 2018, to which he admitted to writing recreational music for Godzilla years earlier because Holkenborg was a fan. Holkenborg subsequently began communicating with the director, enduring the material and playing it for the director, stating that Wingard was completely in love. Holkenborg requested a bass drum about ten feet in diameter, but the builder was only able to downsized it to eight feet. [46] Release marketing In May 2019, the first promotional one-page poster was revealed at the Licensing Exhibition. In June 2019, Warner Bros. screened an early look at European exhibitors at CineEurope. In August 2019, it was announced that Disruptor Beam would develop a mobile game to tie up for the film's release. In December 2019, a short clip was leaked during a Warner Bros. [50] In January 2020, images of the Hong Kong Toys & Games Fair display figures related to the film were leaked online. [51] In February 2020, Toho and Legendary announced the Godzilla vs. Kong Publishing Program and licenses. Through the publishing emany, Legendary plans to release two graphic novels, one following Godzilla and the other next Kong, an art book, novels and a children's book. Among the licensees mentioned were Playmates Toys, Bioworld, Rubies, Funko, GOOut and the Virtual Reality Company. In April 2020, images of toy figures were leaked online, revealing different forms for Godzilla and Kong, and a new specimen called Nozuki. In July 2020, images of Playmate figures and packaging with concept art were released online. In December 2020, short clips of Godzilla swimming and Kong roared were shown during Comic Con Experience. [55] Theater and Streaming Godzilla vs. Kong is scheduled to be released in the United States on May 21, 2021 in 2D, 3D and IMAX. [56] It will be distributed by Warner Bros. Pictures,[57] except in Japan, where it will be distributed by Toho. [4] The film was delayed several times during production and was previously scheduled to be released on 29 May 22, 13 March and 20 November 2020. [58] Ashes Pandemic, the film has been pushed to release its current 2021, taking the release date initially intended for The Matrix 4. In February 2020, Warner Bros. offered an unhealthy test screening that received a mostly positive response. In November 2020, The Hollywood Reporter confirmed that the film is being considered for a streaming release. Netflix offered $200–250 million[1] but WarnerMedia blocked the deal in favor of their own offering to release the film on HBO Max. Warner Bros. however, has iterated that their theatrical release plans will continue as scheduled. WarnerMedia CEO WarnerMedia CEO Jason Kilar and Warner Bros. Chairman Ann Sarnoff are considering options that could potentially include a simultaneous theater and streaming release, a strategy that Warner Bros. [60] In December, Warner Bros. announced that the film, along with their other tentpoles scheduled for 2021, will get same-day simultaneous releases in theaters and HBO Max. [61] A week after the announcement, Variety and Deadline Hollywood reported that Legendary Entertainment, Financiers and Talent with Background Shares were not satisfied with WarnerMedia's multi-release plans and non-transparent intentions. Legendary was not given advanced notice of the multi-release decision, nor gave a say in how Dune and Godzilla vs. Kong would be distributed. The studio plan to have talks with Warner Bros. [62] A few weeks later, Deadline reported that the film could hold its HBO Max release, but only as Warner Bros. [63] Notes ^ a b c The U.S. releases of Godzilla (Godzilla, King of the Monsters), King Kong vs. Godzilla, and The Return of Godzilla (Godzilla 1985) featured additional footage fetched with American actors filmed by small Hollywood production companies that merged the U.S. footage with the original Japanese footage to appeal to American audiences [3] Invasion of Astro-Monster was the first Godzilla film produced together between a Japanese studio (Toho) and an American studio (UPA). The first Godzilla film produced entirely by a Hollywood studio was TriStar's Godzilla (1998). References^ a b c Rebecca Rubin; Brent Lang (December 7, 2020).
